Regional Leaders Make Case for Rail Transit at Tracks to the Future

The December 11 conference at the Downtown Sheraton attracted 280 attendees for a lively discussion about the future of commuter rail and modern streetcars in Dallas/Fort Worth. All speakers emphasized the urgency of promoting walkable, urban, transit-oriented development to accommodate future growth and remain competitive with other regions for economic development. As former Charlotte Mayor Pat McCrory said, Fort Worth is doing many things very well, but we're behind many of our peer cities on transit. That could change in the near future as a consultant team works this year on a modern streetcar plan to connect the Near Southside to Downtown, the Cultural District, and other central city destinations. For a great recap of the conference, see Kevin Buchanan's thorough coverage at Fort Worthology. The conference sessions will also be broadcast on the City's community cable station later this month, and we'll let you know about the schedule when we get more information.

Vision North Texas Summit - Tracks to the Future highlighted many problems associated with suburban sprawl as well as the need for a new development model. Fortunately for the Near Southside, the best model for accommodating 4.1 million new Metroplex residents by 2030 is walkable urbanism. On Friday, January 22nd you can learn more and help shape the region's future at the Vision North Texas summit, 8am-3pm at the University of Texas at Arlington. Visit www.visionnorthtexas.org.

200 Block of South Main

Historic South Main blocks added to National Register of Historic Places – Another historic section of the Near Southside achieved landmark status last month as eight buildings within the 100-200 blocks of South Main Street were added to the National Register of Historic Places. A special thanks to the property owners for preserving and honoring these historic buildings and to Susan Kline for her impressive work in documenting the area's history. And stay tuned for more news about South Main as we expect to hear soon from the North Central Texas Council of Governments about a funding application for wider sidewalks, street trees, lamp posts, and on-street parking.

Keep Tabs on Security through New Website – The Police Department is distributing crime information through a user-friendly website. Visit the crimemapping.com site and zoom in on the Near Southside to see the latest reports. Keeping tabs on security and reporting any illegal or suspicious activity helps keep the neighborhood safe.

Cat City Grill Launches Website – The much anticipated opening of a new Near Southside eatery is drawing closer as Cat City Grill launches catcitygrill.com. The site doesn't list a date but gives a preview of what they'll serve at the 1208 W. Magnolia location. Cat City Grill is a joint effort by Vance Martin of Lili's Bistro and former Del Frisco's chef Martin Thompson.

Cowboys of Color Rodeo – Don't miss the debut of the Cowboys of Color Rodeo on Monday, January 18th at the 2010 Fort Worth Stock Show & Rodeo! Start the day with the 11am MLK Parade, Downtown at 15th & Commerce Streets, free and open to the public. At 2pm enjoy the debut of the Fort Worth Cowboys Of Color Rodeo, tickets $16, Will Rogers Coliseum, 3401 Lancaster Avenue.
